2000-2003 TRUCKS

The following components are covered under our exclusive Ready Truck 30-Day Warranty.

- Engine
- Transmission
- Rear End

Under 750,000 miles - Total cumulative claims not to exceed $5,000 during 30-day period.

Over 750,000 miles - Sold "AS IS"

These are the only components covered. Other components are "AS IS" unless an optional extended warranty is purchased. Seals and Gaskets are not covered.

Is towing covered?

Since towing and travel charges are not considered to be Parts or Labor, these items are not covered.

Are wear items such as clutch and brake shoes covered under my warranty?

Wear items should have been inspected and replaced (if necessary) as part of our reconditioning program. Wear items are not covered.

Does the manufacturer's warranty supersede our 30 day warranty?

Yes. Any existing OEM or purchased aftermarket warranty will override this 30-day coverage.

My truck broke down and I had it repaired. Will you now reimburse me for those warrantable repairs?

If you fail to receive authorization from Wicks before you have repairs made, (even if they would have been covered under the warranty), Wicks will not reimburse you for repairs. Authorization must be received prior to repairs being made. Failure to call before repair is started voids coverage of the specific failure.

Will Wicks provide me a truck to use while mine is being repaired?

Wicks is not responsible for a rental, inconvenience, loss of time, commercial loss or consequential damages.

Are you going to pay downtime expenses?

We will help minimize your downtime as much as possible. Wicks has 2 service shifts to fix equipment. Please see our Driver One Program outlined in this brochure. Downtime is not covered.

Who do I call if I have a failure?

Call your Wicks sales representative from whom you purchased your truck.

How will I know if my failure and the repairs I need are covered under warranty?

Upon completion of diagnosis by an authorized technician here at Wicks.

When does my 30-day warranty take effect?

The date should coincide with the day you took delivery of your vehicle.
